Syncopated Rhythms (Portland, OR) is a group of professional Swing Dance instructors, performers, competitors and deejays who specialize in the dances and music of the early 20th Century. They formed as a company in August 2008 and collectively have over 30 years of dance experience. They teach and deejay regularly in Portland, but their main focus is “Swingin’ Gypsy Weekend,” an event that showcases vintage-inspired music from Portland’s finest musicians. The event will be January 22-24, 2010 at the PPAA (SE Alder between 6th Ave and 7th Ave).

For more information or to hire Syncopated Rhythms for your next event, please visit www.SyncopatedRhythms.com or email them at contact@SyncopatedRhythms.com.

Original artwork from the “gaslamp fantasy comic”

Girl Genius

will be featured at the Oregon Nikkei Legacy Center

August 14 – September 20.

This artwork, along with text illustrating the process and history of the story give you a chance to see a strong female lead character—something all too rare in mainstream comics. Girl Genius features “adventure, romance and some mad science” surrounding the title character, Agatha Heterodyne.

“Because of who and what she is, everyone either wants to control her or kill her. Comedy ensues.”

—Creator Phil Foglio
